

News Corp UK & Ireland Limited's IPSO Annual Statement 2019

1. INTRODUCTION

The Regulated Entity (as defined in, and for the purposes of, the Independent Press Standards Organisation CIC Regulations 2013) is News Corp UK & Ireland Limited ('News UK'). The Relevant Period is the period running from 1 January 2019 to 31 December 2019.

1.1 A brief overview of News UK

News UK is a wholly-owned subsidiary of News Corporation, an entity incorporated in the United States and listed on the NASDAQ Stock Exchange. The following companies are wholly-owned subsidiaries of News UK:

- News Group Newspapers Limited ('NGN'), which owns and publishes The Sun;
- Times Newspapers Limited ('TNL'), which owns and publishes The Times and The Sunday Times; and
- Times Literary Supplement Limited ('TLSL'), which owns and publishes The Times Literary Supplement.

1.2 News UK's responsible persons

News UK's responsible persons are:

- Angus McBride, General Counsel and Chief Compliance Officer (angus.mcbride@news.co.uk or 0207 782 6978); and

1.3 News UK's titles

1.3.1 The Sun

- ABC figure for 2019 - Average print circulation of The Sun: 1,293,048
- ABC figure for 2019 – Average print circulation of The Sun on Sunday: 1,087,529
- Comscore figure for 2019 – Average unique views of The Sun online: 32,205,000

Websites:

- <https://www.thesun.co.uk/>
- <https://www.thescottishsun.co.uk/>

As it celebrated its 50th birthday, The Sun kicked off 2019 with the royal scoop that The Duke of Edinburgh had crashed his car in Sandringham and finished it with an even bigger one as the paper revealed that Harry and Meghan were stepping down from royal duties. Other important stories included finding fugitive speedboat killer Jack Shepherd as he fought his manslaughter appeal from abroad. The Sun was first with the news and his second appeal in May. The Sun was the first to expose major flaws in the Cypriot police investigation into the British rape victim in Aya Napa. After a major diplomatic row, she eventually received a suspended sentence under huge pressure from the UK government.

Meanwhile, to celebrate its 50th birthday, The Sun launched a £1 million fund to be distributed to causes close to readers' hearts throughout 2020. Months in, and it has already provided grants to fund an accessibility ramp for a local theatre, a caravan holiday home for families of children undergoing cancer treatment, a catering van to provide hot food and drink to the homeless in Edinburgh, and toys for underprivileged children in Charwood.

The Sun received 17 nominations and four awards in the 2019 Society of Editors' Press Awards – the most in the paper's history - and also picked up a special honour for 50 years' campaigning.

1.3.2 The Times

THE TIMES

- ABC figure for 2019 - Average print circulation: 388,212
- Comscore figure for 2019 – Average unique views of Times Online: 6,370,000

Website:

- <https://www.thetimes.co.uk/>

The Times, founded in 1785, is the oldest national daily newspaper in the UK and holds an important place as the 'paper of record' on public life, from politics and world affairs to business and sport. Agenda-setting news reporting and analysis are complemented by an incisive Comment section, featuring columnists from across the political spectrum and the best satirical cartoonists. Other prominent fixtures of the paper include the Register section and puzzles pages (The Times introduced Sudoku to the nation back in 2005). In an age when world leaders routinely dismiss unwelcome reports as 'fake news', readers need a source they can trust for honest journalism that informs, entertains and analyses without bias. In 2018 they found it, once more, in The Times, with agenda-setting investigations and exclusives, unrivalled coverage of politics and business at home and abroad, and a range of columnists from all sides of the political spectrum showcased in print and on digital platforms.

Agenda-setting stories of significant public interest were broken throughout the year. In February, for instance, the paper's distinguished foreign correspondent Anthony Loyd produced one of the biggest scoops of recent times when he found and interviewed Shamima Begum, the Bethnal Green schoolgirl who ran away from her home in east London to join Islamic State in 2015. The debate sparked by this remarkable story continues to this day. In May, The Times reported that millions of children in Britain attend schools in areas suffering dangerous levels of air pollution. The paper used the story to launch its "Clean Air For All" campaign manifesto, calling for a new act of parliament to ensure that everyone has the right to clean air. The campaign continued through the year in a series of hard-hitting investigative reports.

1.3.3 The Sunday Times

- ABC figure for 2019 - Average print circulation: 679,420
- Comscore figure for 2019 – Average unique views of Times Online: 6,370,000

Website:

- <https://www.thetimes.co.uk/>

The Sunday Times, founded in 1822, is Britain's best-selling quality national Sunday newspaper. With an unrivalled depth and breadth of coverage through its eight separate sections, The Sunday Times enjoys the largest audience reach of any quality Sunday newspaper. It has continually broken boundaries: the first newspaper to introduce a separate business section; the first to publish a glossy colour magazine; a pioneering use of photography; and, with the Insight team, the longest-running investigations unit in the print press.

In 2019, the Insight team broke a series of public interest stories, including Boris Johnson's potential conflicts of interest when public funds were paid to Jennifer Arcuri; ministers' suppression of evidence of war crimes by British soldiers in Iraq; UK passports offered for cash in a flawed Home Office fast-tracking scheme; slaves used in supply chains to Britain's top supermarkets; and Qatar's secret $400m offer to Fifa. Health editor Andrew Gregory ran a series of investigative articles uncovering the UK's epidemic of addiction to prescription opioid drugs. In The Sunday Times Magazine, Sharon Hendry investigated the lives of children on north London's Broadwater Farm estate: an appeal along with the feature, to fund summer holiday activities at the local school, raised more than £300,000 from readers, which was donated to similar causes nationwide. A further appeal at Christmas raised more than £800,000. The quality of the paper's coverage was recognised at the 2019 Press Awards. The Insight team won Scoop of the Year; Tim Shipman was named Political Reporter of the Year; Christina Lamb won Feature Writer of the Year; and Chris Haslam won Travel Journalist of the Year.

1.3.4 The Times Literary Supplement

TLS

- ABC figure for 2019 – Average print circulation: 30,223.
- Comscore figure for June to December 2019 – Average unique views: 26,888

Website:

- <https://www.the-tls.co.uk/>

The TLS is the leading international forum for literary culture. For more than a hundred years, The TLS has interpreted the work of the finest thinkers in the literary world. The TLS is unafraid of difficulty, challenges intellectual obscurity and brings light, clarity and reason where those qualities have never been needed more. The TLS 'has no rivals', says Le Monde. Its writers are critics and philosophers, historians and poets, interpreters, stimulators, inquirers, all of them arguing for their opinions in an age when opinion is too often delivered without justification of any kind. From ancient to modern, it brings the best current thinking to life in every word, on paper, on iPad, online.

2. GUIDANCE FOR NEWS UK JOURNALISTS

On joining News UK, all journalists are provided with a copy of the Editors' Code of Practice.

Further, all staff are issued with the Working at News booklet, which provides a summary of News UK's policies governing employee and staff conduct. These policies are published on News UK's intranet and staff are periodically required to certify that they have read, understood and will comply with them. As well as covering matters of workplace conduct such as bullying, harassment and whistleblowing, the policies cover matters such as bribery, conflicts of interest, data protection and privacy, all of which have a bearing on journalism. The Working at News booklet also makes clear that all editorial staff must read the Code in full, be aware of any updates to it, and uphold both the letter and the spirit of it. Compliance with the Code is also a standard contractual term in News UK's editorial contracts.

3. EDITORIAL STANDARDS

3.1. An overview of News UK titles' approach to editorial standards

News UK, TNL, NGN, TLSL and all of News UK's titles are committed to abiding by IPSO's Regulations and the Editors' Code of Practice (the 'Code') that IPSO enforces. Details of how News UK's titles deal with pre-publication guidance, verification of stories and compliance with the Editors' Code are set out below. News UK and its titles take complaints regarding editorial standards very seriously. The complaints policy for each News UK title is set out clearly on the relevant title's website, further information on which is below.

3.2. Dissemination of IPSO private advisory notices

Pre-publication guidance issued by IPSO is circulated as soon as possible by email to relevant staff on each News UK title and kept on file for future reference.

3.3. Verification of stories

All News UK titles strive for the highest standards of accuracy and all editorial staff are expected to follow standard journalistic best practice in verifying stories. When reporting events not witnessed at first hand, journalists are expected to take all possible steps to establish the credibility and reliability of any sources, and to corroborate their accounts where appropriate. In using the internet, the titles consider it vital to distinguish between verified and reputable sources (academic research, public databases, legal documents, material published by trusted news organisations) and internet postings on unknown or unregulated websites, social media and blogs. Where appropriate, journalists are expected to approach the subjects of stories for comment before publication.

4. COMPLAINTS-HANDLING PROCESS

Please see below for information on how NGN, TNL and TLSL handle editorial complaints.

4.1. NGN

The Sun is rigorous in its complaints-handling and is committed to abiding by the IPSO rules and regulations, as well as the Editors' Code.

4.1.1. Complaints policy

The editorial complaints page on The Sun website states that:

The Sun takes complaints about editorial content seriously.

We are committed to abiding by the Independent Press Standards Organisation ('IPSO') rules and regulations, and the Editors' Code of Practice that IPSO enforces.

For further details about IPSO, and to see a copy of the Code, click here.

If you would like to make a complaint under the terms of the Editors' Code, administered by IPSO, please fill out the following form.

Alternatively, you can email editorialcomplaints@the-sun.co.uk, or write to Editorial Complaints, The Sun, 1 London Bridge Street, London SE1 9GF.

The Sun's editorial complaints policy is also set out on the editorial complaints page of its website as follows:

- 1. This policy relates to all complaints framed within the terms of the Editors' Code.*
- 2. The Sun aims to handle all complaints as efficiently and effectively as possible.*
- 3. All complaints will be acknowledged promptly.*
- 4. We may need to contact you to request further information, in order to be able to fully understand and respond to your complaint.*
- 5. If we do not believe that your complaint requires investigation – for example because we do not believe it has raised a possible breach of the Code – we will let you know and explain the reasons why.*
- 6. Where appropriate, we will seek to resolve the complaint to your satisfaction.*
- 7. If we cannot resolve your complaint, or you disagree with our assessment that there has been no breach of the Editors' Code, you can take your complaint to IPSO.*

4.1.2. IPSO complaints

During the Relevant Period, complaints were dealt with by the Head of Editorial Compliance for The Sun, in conjunction with the Managing Editor.

4.1.3. Forms of complaint

Complaints are received in writing. There is a form on the editorial complaints page of The Sun's website which readers can use to submit a complaint or, alternatively, they can send an email to editorialcomplaints@the-sun.co.uk. It is also possible to submit a complaint in the post.

4.1.4. Accuracy and corrections

The importance attached to accuracy on The Sun is demonstrated by a prominent Corrections & Clarifications column permanently located on page 2 of the print edition. This states that The Sun aims to have the highest standards and abides by the rules in the Code. It also states that The Sun is a member of IPSO and advises readers that, if they would like to make a complaint to The Sun, to go to www.thesun.co.uk/ipso, email editorialcomplaints@the-sun.co.uk, or write to Editorial Complaints, The Sun, 1 London Bridge Street, London SE1 9GF.

A link to the Corrections & Clarifications page is provided on the home page of The Sun's website: <https://www.thesun.co.uk/admin/clarifications/>.

The IPSO mark is carried both in the Corrections & Clarifications column in the print edition, and on the Editorial Complaints page of the website.

Where possible, corrections are published promptly with the agreement of the complainant. Substantive complaints which are resolved directly are communicated to the relevant staff and inform future training for journalists.

4.2. TNL

4.2.1. Complaints policy

TNL takes complaints about editorial standards seriously and is committed to abiding by the IPSO rules and regulations and the Code that IPSO enforces.

The Times

The Times complaints policy is published on The Times Editorial Complaints page on The Times website, where the IPSO mark also appears and states:

The Times takes complaints about editorial content seriously. We are committed to abiding by the Independent Press Standards Organisation ('IPSO') rules and regulations and the Editors' Code of Practice that IPSO enforces.

- 1. The Times aims to handle all complaints as efficiently and effectively as possible.*
- 2. All complaints will be acknowledged on receipt.*
- 3. If we receive multiple complaints about the same issue we may make one response to all.*
- 4. We may request further information from you to enable us to investigate your complaint.*
- 5. We will deal promptly with complaints. Once full details have been established, we aim to resolve within 28 days any complaint brought under the IPSO Editors' Code. If we fail to resolve such a complaint to your satisfaction within this time, you may refer the matter to IPSO. If we believe that no breach of the Editors' Code is involved, we will tell you.*
- 6. You can see a copy of the Editors' Code here.*
- 7. If at any stage of your complaint we do not hear back from you within 28 working days, we will consider your complaint resolved.*

The Times Editorial Complaints page also states that readers wishing to make an editorial complaint may do so by email to the Feedback Editor of The Times (feedback@thetimes.co.uk) or by post to Feedback, The Times, The News Building, 1 London Bridge Street, London SE1 9GF. More serious complaints about editorial standards and requests for corrections are handled by senior editorial executives with more than thirty years' experience, answering directly to the Editor.

The Sunday Times

The Sunday Times complaints policy is provided on The Sunday Times Editorial Complaints page on its website where the IPSO mark also appears and states:

The Sunday Times takes complaints about editorial content seriously. We aim to resolve your complaint efficiently, promptly and effectively by direct contact with you.

If you would like to complain about a Sunday Times story, please fill out this form.

If you wish to make your complaint by post, please write to: Complaints, The Sunday Times, The News Building, 1 London Bridge Street, London SE1 9GF.

We abide by the rules and regulations of the Independent Press Standards Organisation (IPSO) and the Editors' Code of Practice, which IPSO enforces. For further details about IPSO click here and to see a copy of the Code, click here.

If you would like to make a complaint under the terms of the Editors' Code, you have two options:

- Complain directly to IPSO here. If IPSO decides that the Code may have been breached it will forward the complaint to The Sunday Times.
- Complain to The Sunday Times by filling out this form. We will let you know whether or not we think the Code has been breached.

How does The Sunday Times handle your complaint about editorial content?

If a complaint brought under the Editors' Code is not resolved by agreement with you within a reasonable time it will be passed to IPSO for resolution.

If we receive multiple complaints about the same matter we may make one response to all.

We may request further information from you in order to investigate your complaint.

If we conclude that the Editor's Code has been breached, we will propose remedial action such as a correction.

We will tell you if, in our opinion, there has been no breach.

If at any stage of your complaint we do not hear back from you within 28 working days, we will consider your complaint closed.

If you are not satisfied with our handling of your complaint, you should contact IPSO.

4.2.2. IPSO complaints

Readers of The Times or The Sunday Times can complain about a possible breach of the Editors' Code by complaining to IPSO directly or completing the automated IPSO complaints form. A link for complaints for each title is provided on The Times and The Sunday Times editorial complaints pages on the website. The IPSO form requires the reader to confirm the article which they are complaining about, the clause(s) of the Editors' Code under which they wish to complain, and provide brief details of their complaint (with any supporting documentation, if applicable).

Editorial standards and complaints on The Times are the responsibility of Assistant Editor, Ian Brunskill. Routine complaints are usually dealt with by Feedback Editor, Rose Wild. Editorial complaints on The Sunday Times are dealt with by Executive Editor, Bob Tyrer, or Letters Editor, Steve Bleach, as appropriate. The TNL editorial legal team may be consulted particularly if Claimants engage lawyers.

4.2.3. Forms of complaint

The Times and The Sunday Times accepts complaints by email, post, and through the automated IPSO complaints form on the website. Readers who complain by telephone are encouraged to put their complaint in writing.

4.2.4. Accuracy and corrections

The Times and The Sunday Times take complaints about editorial content seriously and there is a Corrections and Clarifications column on the Letters to the Editor page in the print version of both titles. This appears in every edition, regardless of whether there are any corrections or clarifications at the time of going to print.

There is also a link to both The Times Corrections and The Sunday Times Corrections on the website. The Times' Corrections and Clarifications web page states that The Times takes complaints about editorial content seriously. It also states that The Times is committed to abiding by the IPSO rules and regulations, directs readers to send requests for corrections or clarifications by email to feedback@thetimes.co.uk or by post to Feedback, The Times, 1 London Bridge Street, London SE1 9GF.

The Sunday Times' Corrections and Clarifications column directs readers to submit complaints about inaccuracies by email to complaints@sunday-times.co.uk or by post to Complaints, The Sunday Times, 1 London Bridge Street, London SE1 9GF. It also contains a link to the title's complaints procedure and states that IPSO will examine formal complaints about the editorial content of UK newspapers and magazines.

The IPSO mark is carried in the Corrections and Clarifications column on the Letters to the Editor page in the print version of both titles and on the complaints link on the website.

4.3. TSL

The TSL takes complaints about editorial standards seriously and is committed to abiding by the IPSO rules and regulations and the Code that IPSO enforces.

4.3.1. Complaints policy

The TLS website states that:

The TLS is committed to abiding by the rules and regulations of the Independent Press Standards Organisation (IPSO) and the Editors' Code of Practice that IPSO enforces. For further details about IPSO, go to <http://www.ipso.co.uk/>; to see the Code of Practice, go to http://www.editorscode.org.uk/the_code.php.

If you would like to make a complaint under the terms of the Editors' Code administered by IPSO, please fill out this form.

If you wish to make your complaint by post, please write to:

*The Editor,
Times Literary Supplement,
The News Building,
1 London Bridge Street,
London SE1 9GF*

4.3.2. IPSO complaints

The TLS website states that, if a reader would like to make a complaint under the Editors' Code, to fill out the automated IPSO form, a link to which is provided on the website. This requires the reader to confirm the article which they are complaining about, the clause(s) of the Editors' Code under which they wish to complain, and brief details of their complaint (with any supporting documentation, if applicable). The TLS website also invites readers to make a complaint via post by writing to the Editor of The TLS at The News Building, 1 London Bridge Street, London SE1 9GF.

The IPSO Mark is carried on the contact page on The TLS website: <https://www.the-tls.co.uk/contact-us/> and a reference to IPSO is also included on page three of the print version.

4.3.3. Forms of complaint

The TLS primarily accepts complaints through the automated IPSO complaints form, as well as by post.

5. RECORD ON COMPLIANCE

Details of any complaints against News UK's titles are provided below.

5.1. Details of any complaints against Sun titles

During the Relevant Period, IPSO investigated 31 complaints against Sun titles: of those, 15 complaints were not upheld, eight were resolved through IPSO mediation, and eight were upheld (across The Sun, The Sun on Sunday, The Scottish Sun, The Scottish Sun on Sunday, Sun Online and Scottish Sun Online). In response to upheld complaints, warnings were added to the relevant cuttings databases so that staff using cuttings to research future articles on related topics would be aware of the upheld complaints and not repeat previous errors. Upheld complaints were incorporated into any subsequent face-to-face training sessions.

5.2. Details of any complaints against The Times titles

During the Relevant Period, IPSO investigated nine complaints against The Times: one was upheld in part, under Clause 1 of the Code (Accuracy); two were resolved through IPSO mediation. In the remaining six complaints, there was found to have been no breach of the Code. Links to the complaints are below.

The upheld adjudications and corresponding complaints were drawn to the attention of all Sunday Times staff in an email from the Letters Editor for The Sunday Times, Steve Bleach, on 16 April 2020. Links to each upheld complaint were set out in the email and have been discussed as appropriate with the journalists and desk heads involved.

5.4. Details of any complaints against The TLS

There were no complaints against The TLS during the Relevant Period.

6. TRAINING PROCESS

Please see below for information on the training that News UK has provided to its editorial staff on IPSO.

6.1. Initial training

6.1.1. Face-to-face training

At the time of the launch of IPSO in September 2014, News UK, via its Compliance and editorial legal departments, undertook face-to-face training of all NGN and TNL editorial staff. This face-to-face training covered the law relating to journalism and the Editors' Code, and provided editorial staff with bespoke training materials. Since then, News UK's programme of face-to-face training on IPSO has continued, as set out below.

6.1.2. IPSO and Editorial Compliance e-learning module

In addition to the face-to-face training, News UK's bespoke IPSO and Editorial Compliance e-learning module was first launched to all News UK editorial staff, including NGN, TNL and TLSL, on 13 March 2017. As part of this launch, all editorial staff received a pocket-sized version of the Code. The module covers newsgathering scenarios concerning the Code, as well as News UK's Payment and Editorial Data Protection Policies. Introductions to the various sections of the module are voiced by Stig Abell (Editor of The TLS and former Director of the Press Complaints Commission), Angus McBride (News UK General Counsel) and Pia Sarma (TNL Editorial Legal Director and News UK Deputy General Counsel).

In 2019, the e-learning module was updated to reflect IPSO's most recent rulings and the most commonly arising issues for our journalists.

As training on the Code necessarily covers the more general and commonly-occurring considerations, News UK editorial staff are strongly encouraged to seek guidance on any issues that a story might raise under the Editors' Code so that the specifics of the case can be considered. The relevant senior editors and editorial legal department answer Editors' Code queries from journalists both during the newsgathering process and when copy is being finalised.

6.2. Training in the Relevant Period

6.2.1. All staff

An updated form of The IPSO and Editorial Compliance e-learning module was launched again to all News UK editorial staff, including NGN, TNL and TLSL, on 6 March 2019. From 6 March 2019, the IPSO and Editorial Compliance module has also been launched to editorial new joiners as part of the compulsory compliance training programme.

6.2.2. NGN

During the relevant period, NGN undertook face-to-face training on News UK's Payment Policy which sets out how our journalists may make payment to sources. This training also covered those clauses of the Editors' Code which concern payments. Training was delivered to all relevant desks (news, pictures, features, showbiz). It took place in the London office and staff in the Manchester and Glasgow offices attended via video link. The training was delivered by News UK's Chief Compliance Officer and Senior Compliance Officer and The Sun's Head of Editorial Compliance.

6.2.3. TNL

TNL training is conducted by TNL Editorial Legal as well as the senior editors responsible for editorial standards. There was a programme of continuing training in place for TNL throughout the Relevant Period, which included targeted seminars on specific topics in more detail for smaller groups. These sessions covered legal and standards issues including the Editors' Code and was delivered by senior editors, editorial legal team and barristers. A specific training session was rolled out for graduate trainees, the digital team and new sub-editors.

6.3 Plans for further training

The IPSO and Editorial Compliance module is due to be updated and released again to all News UK editorial staff in Q3 2020. News UK's titles will roll out training for its journalists again in 2020.
